Mrs. Spangston,
I don't know if you wanted anyone to sign your book. But! I wanted you to never forget your dear (na) little editor in Seneca. We're doing fine this year. He's got two classes. I hope your doing fine.
Good luck!

Love, Leah Evans

FAMOUS BURGERS. In the band concession stand long before the crowd gathers, chefs Joe Luttrell and Sam Stewart get the hamburgers on.

WILL THERE BE A SEAT? This seems to be the question on many minds as the last of the crowd comes in before the first home game.

A BOOST TO BOOSTERS. Bill Stewart and Corky Schwiening are honored at Brady half-time for outstanding behind the scenes boosting.

TOO TIGHT! As Oscar Gutierrez supervises, Billy Laxton loosens the wrap job on Jessie Guerra's leg in readiness for the Mason game.

Behind the Scenes

Lights! Camera! Action! Whatever is about to begin represents a lot of work and action behind the scenes before the fact.

If a story is to be told as it really is, then the scene behind the scene must receive equal billing with the event.

"Telling it like it is" will attempt to do just that, give the story behind the story, sing the unsung hero—or at least show how and why.

All the accomplishments of the year start with the unnoticed things like planning or going to camp or working out in the heat.

Playing the game is less important than learning to play. Winners are made behind the scenes.

THE FINAL TOUCH. Getting ready to march at the Mason game is more than just getting into a uniform for Patsy Samaniego—it's a complete make-over.

Behind the scenes

Cheerleaders and band members do a lot behind the scenes to get ready for the fall season. They start by attending summer camps and rehearsing in the August heat.

Both groups travel wherever the Broncos go and arrive early to get ready for the games. In front of the stands on the Sonora side, the cheerleaders put up their signs. Behind the bleachers, they stretch and warm-up for action.

Cheerleaders take the lead in the weekly assemblies, but they rely on the band, the student body, and members of the community to help—some by speaking to the rallies, others by attending and yelling.

For every action out front, there is at least an equal behind-the-scenes action.

THE SEARCH IS ON. Bus trip over, band uniforms on, next step is finding the horns. Emily Gonzales has found hers.

WAITING. Cheerleaders Janice Gomez, Casey Crites, Judy Merrill (head), Kristi Hill, Melanie Kelly, and Lora Lea Korkzik stand anxious for the first home game with Junction to begin.

STACKED. The cheerleaders make one of their many pyramid styles in pep rally.

ON TOP. Coach Don Sessom uses some beans and a ball to show what it takes to get there.

SMOKED OUT. After the giant match gets the Brady Bulldog (Lorri French) out of the dog house, Peter Chavez and Gina McMillon drag "him" off to the pound.

A LOT TO DO. At Mason, the cheerleaders work to get the signs put up on the Bronco sidelines.

Behind the scenes

Warm-ups are an integral part of "behind-the-scenes."

For the football players, warming up may begin in the training room with rub-downs and/or whirlpools which get the blood circulating and the muscles relaxed.

Sound machine treatments are a part, too. The machine shoots sound waves down to the bone and loosens muscle pulls and calcium SUCK IT IN OR I'LL STICK YOU. Mrs. Hulsey adjusts Stacy Miller's cumberbund as the flags run through their pre-performance warm-up before the Brady football game.

LIMBERING UP. Before the game at Mason, junior flag Leah Evans stretches her stride in preparation for the half-time band show.

deposits.

The trainers are in charge of this phase of the warming up. They also throw in words of encouragement and pats on the back—the psychological warm-ups.

Then, it's out on the field for a while where the coaches put the boys through some warm-up exercises.

Band members do not go into a performance cold, either. Instruments must be warmed up by blowing, reeds softened.

For flag corps members, strides must be stretched and flags mounted. Some last minute adjusting of uniforms usually combines with a warm-up routine.

The singer needs to warm up the voice, and the typist entering competition limbers up the fingers with a period of exercises.

Besides the hours and hours of practice learning a skill, the warm-up plays an important role behind-the-scenes and in the final performance.

STRETCH. In the pre-game warm-ups, Jim Cooper reaches for his toes.

FLOWER FOR A FLAG. As she readies the flag for her last half-time show, senior Candy Cauthorn smiles through happy tears wearing the big mum given to her by the other girls in the flag corps as a farewell and in appreciation for her work as flag captain.

Behind the scenes at a beauty pageant

"It was real exciting. It was neat, because I was not expecting to get it," said Kathryn Parker after her selection as the 1984 Lions' Queen.

For her and the rest of the candidates and their escorts, the worst part of the whole thing was waiting for the judges.

"I wasn't nervous," said Gina Black, "until we started walking up and down. Then it hit me."

Judy Merrill, second runner-up said she didn't get as nervous as the year before. "Last year, I got hives."

First runner-up Debbie Bible was first in to see the judges. She admitted to being "nervous."

Lynn Duckworth said, "It's walking in there in front of everyone that scares me. I'm glad I'm first. Then I can just enjoy the rest of it."

MIRROR, MIRROR. Filling the time, Debbie Shannon brushes her hair again.

Moment of truth

In bullfighting, it is called 'the moment of truth.' It is that instant when you realize something for the first time—know it and accept it emotionally as the truth.

Some of the class of 1984 are still waiting for this revelation, but others know exactly when they discovered that they were seniors.

Following are some of the responses to the question of when it really hit them that they were seniors.

Billy Laxton: . . . "When I realized how many freshmen I did not know."

Joe Mata and Patsy Samaniego: . . . "during the last football game."

Deanna Haltom: "It hasn't really hit me yet. It's like my life is a schedule—the same 'ole' routine."

Lee Ann Sims: . . . "after the Christmas break."

Kristi Hill: . . . "around Christmas when I started sending in college applications. I got excited, and I've had senioritis ever since."

Jane Penalver: . . . "I was getting my senior portraits made. It really shocked me to see myself in a cap and gown."

Lynn Duckworth, Judy Merrill, Karen Fish, and Mike Ritz: . . . "when we ordered our graduation invitations."

Eugene Gonzales: . . . "at the beginning of the year when last year's seniors weren't around anymore. I realized there was no one else to tell us how to do things."

Barry Graves: . . . "at the end of school last year."

Mike Polocek: . . . "I haven't accepted the fact yet. It's been just another year of school."

Jeff Brittain: . . . "It hasn't hit me yet. I am still acting, and it still feels like any other year."

Rodney Jones: . . . "during football when the coaches would say, 'Make your last year the best year!'"

Lorri French: . . . "when basketball ends, I'll probably realize it then. To me, it's just one more step up the ladder of life."

Lisa Webster: . . . "the last day of school last year."

Kathryn Parker: . . . "So far, it hasn't happened to me, but I'm sure it will."

Matt Favila: . . . "It'll probably hit me on graduation night!"

Ronnie Pollard: . . . "when the school year started and all my class was the eldest around."

Debbie Pohl: . . . "Being a senior won't hit me until I have the diploma in my hand."

Ida Castilleja: . . . "I don't feel different or excited, yet."

Norma Guerra: . . . "when I saw this question, and it scared me that I wouldn't be back next year."

Lora Lea Kordzik: . . . "when we started summer cheerleader practice—I realized I only had the summer and 36 short weeks till I would be out in the big, bad world."

Houston Powers: . . . "last year."

Rebecca Short: . . . "when the second semester started."

Kellie Ritz: . . . "when people started asking me at the end of the 11th grade what I was going to do next year after I graduated."

Natalie Holguin: . . . "It hasn't hit me yet because I hang around with juniors, but it probably will, sooner or later."

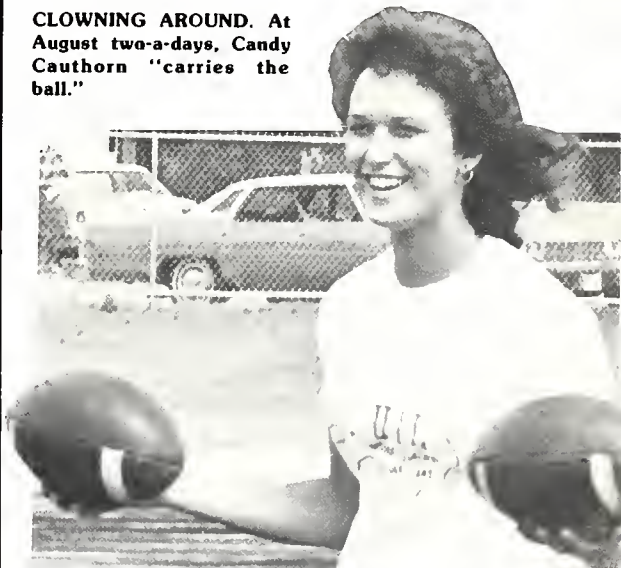

Jearld Short: . . . "after Christmas. I had been making 'so-called plans' but only in thought. I didn't know what would come around at graduation. I have a few more responsibilities than everyone else, and it's kind of scary."

Norma Badillo: . . . "the day I went to take my pictures at Photo Ranch, and the first one I took was with cap and gown."

Gloria Paredes: . . . "It hasn't yet. Maybe Monday it will."

And so it goes. Another senior class heads toward graduation, some already aware of being seniors, others still waiting for their "moment of truth."

CLOWNING AROUND. At August two-a-days, Candy Cauthorn "carries the ball."

In Memoriam

Candace Cauthorn

July 22, 1966-January 3, 1984

It's great and not so great

Lora Lea Kordzik: "One thing I regret about graduation is it will probably be the last time the class of '84 will all be together."

Norma Guerra: "The great thing about being a Senior is that you don't have to take a lot of classes to get credits."

Jane Penalver: "Having seniority is really wonderful. We get away with more things than ever before."

Lynn Duckworth: "I really do love my Senior year. As a Senior you realize that you have accomplished a great many things in your life."

Eugene Gonzales: "The thing that's not so great about being a Senior is that each passing day brings you closer to the time when you have to leave all the security and simplicity of high school life."

Judy Merrill: "You're fixing to be able to really see what life is about and experience independence."

Lisa Kelly: "What's not so great? Everyone will be going their own way?"

Drew Wallace: "Being a Senior is not really that big of a deal, besides the fact that I am about to graduate and leave Sonora."

Tino Martinez: "Well, one thing that is so great, is that you only get to be a Senior one time in your life."

Eddie Castro: "What's not so great is that it's my last year in high school."

Barry Graves: "What's not so great? English IV, Government, and waiting for graduation."

Melanie Kelly: "The thing that is not so great about being a Senior is that once you graduate you can't come back."

Tammy Duren: "The fact that I'll soon be on my own is exciting. What's not so great? Well, some of my closest friends are Juniors and it's really going to be hard next year when I'm so far away from them."

Ronnie Pollard: "The thing not so great is that you have to grow up as fast and face reality—make decisions that will affect the rest of my life."

Debbie Pohl: "To me being a Senior means that I've finally developed enough physically and mentally to be able to cope with the real world."

Tammy Wipff: "It's not so great being a Senior because it seems as though you're going to lose your friends. Well just be apart, going our separate ways."

Mike Poloczek: "It's really great because everyone looks up to you."

Miles Miller: "The thing that is great about being a Senior is the fact that you will be going off to college. That's exciting! What's not so great is the thought of flunking out of college."

Chris DeMarco: "What's not so great? Because it's the last time you will see most of the people that you have been going to school with such a long time."

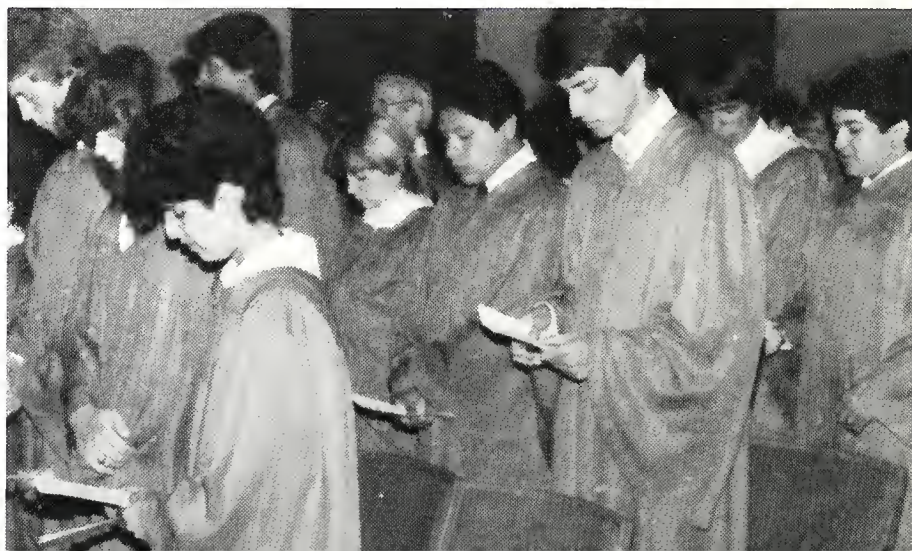

Rosemary Dominguez: "Perhaps the feeling of being a Senior is one of the best there is. There are a few ups and downs, but mostly ups. So far I have had a wonderful year."

Keith Wall: "What's so great? That I'll be able to grow a beard or moustache and have long hair without having to worry about being kicked out of school."

Billy Laxton: "When you're a Senior you can act goofy and get away with it, but when you're a Freshman, everyone says you're immature."

Joe Mata: "Being a Senior is great because you're finally on top of the other fellow students."

The senior class of 1984 sings the first hymn at their baccalaureate service. For some, this was the moment of truth. For many, even yet, it is hard to realize that graduation is almost here.

Getting gowns exciting

Many events during the senior year help make the coming graduation seem real, but none so much as the day the caps and gowns are issued. It goes something like this.

"How do we get them unwrinkled?"

"You press them with an iron."

"I think I'll just send it to Thorp's."

"I need to practice throwing up the hat."

"Frisbees! Whee!"

"Be sure you try on your gowns and your hats to be sure they fit."

"Which side does the thing go on?"

"I think it's left to right."

"It feels like my bathrobe."

"This is so comfortable, I'd like to wear it around school all day."

"Girls wear light colored shoes."

"The hats are supposed to be flat."

"Girls need to check to see that there is a white collar in your box."

"Where's the NHS thing?"

"You need one of them blue ones, don't you?"

"Did ya'll put ya'll's collar on?"

"It's too long . . ."

"They're all that long."

"When do we turn them back?"

"What did we pay all that money for?"

"To rent them."

"Do we get to keep these little . . .?"

"How do you fold this?"

"Can we go to our class, now?"

JUST RIGHT. Getting the feel of the mortarboard, Lynn Duckworth seems to be dreaming of graduation.

CHECKING IT OUT. Norma Guerra even tries the zipper of the graduation gown which has just come in.

BUDDIES. Jeff Brittain helps Drew Wallace with the tassel, bidding Larry Jennings. David Love adjusts his zipper.

From summer to fall

Summer vacation? For many students it is a myth. They spend time during the summer months on such school related activities as band, twirling, or flag camps and workshops in journalism or leadership training. Cheerleaders attend camp and practice.

The band starts rehearsing before school starts and even performs in August at Sutton County Days.

Many students work during the summer to earn money for school clothes, cars or other items.

For football boys, the fall starts in early August with two-a-days.

Even with early starting SUMMER WORKSHOP? After the ILPC journalism workshop in June at U of T in Austin, Mary Huckaby waits in the Jester parking lot to go home.

dates, most students are glad to get back into the rhythm of school and being with friends on a daily basis.

As summer melts into fall, a whole new round of activities begins. The prospect is bright and exciting like a world freshly washed by rain.

ANTICIPATION. Patsy Garcia, Patty Duenes, Patsy Perez, Connie Herrera, Maribel Perez, and Gladys Arredondo wait excitedly on the front steps as the first day of the new year is about to begin.

Cause to celebrate

All work and no play might not make dull boys (and girls), but Spanish Club members and the journalism staffs didn't take any chances.

The fiesta atmosphere pervaded each monthly Spanish Club meeting. At Christmas, they had their annual party in the basement of the First UM Church. The table centerpiece and a main attraction was the cookie house, Spanish style, which Cathy Doran and her mother made for the occasion.

The newspaper staff brightened their work schedule with three month birthday parties, so they were old hands at celebrating when it came time for the "big" party in honor of their second ILPC Tops in Division in March.

The yearbook class had reason to celebrate, too, and did. They won the ILPC Golden Quill award for an outstanding 1983 Bronco yearbook.

Other reasons to celebrate were final performances of drama productions, and, as always, graduation. Every organization had some kind of party or dinner during the year.

Campus cross-section

The use of the video recorder increased considerably this year and was popular with both students and teachers.

The creative and talented students had opportunities in art, music, and drama.

Students practiced the democratic process in class and student council elections.

Laboratory and hands on learning was common in classes such as homemaking, biology and other sciences, and shop.

Field trips, too, aided students. The journalism classes attended ASU Journalism Day and ILPC workshop. Home furnishings class visited a furniture finishing shop in San Angelo before they began their refinishing project.

Ever changing seasons

The high school calendar moves from football to basketball to track, tennis, and golf. It goes from marching to concert, from selecting class rings to choosing graduation invitations, from victory dances to the junior senior prom.

The season to season procession is also the march from Thanksgiving to Christmas to Valentine's Day, to spring break to Easter.

Another rhythm of progression is the week by week, six weeks by six weeks, to semester by semester passage.

With so many different seasons and division markers for the year, no wonder it passed so quickly.

TURKEY TIME. The poster behind Lesli Webster announces the nearing of the Thanksgiving season.

Tops in talent

Underclassmen were active in all extra-curricular activities. They showed themselves to be a talented group in the production of the musical GREASE.

Choreographers for the show were Jari Todd and Keri Kropp. Others participated as members of the cast, stage crew, and combo.

Not only did the underclassmen provide talent for GREASE and other drama and musical events, they added their special spark of enthusiasm and energy to each department.

High school bond passes

It was an exciting and eventful year for the board of trustees of the SISD. It was a year of hard work, many extra meetings, and an intense campaign to pass a bond issue for a new high school.

The site on Bond Road was selected and bought, then architects hired to work out a plan during the 1982-1983 school year. At that time, teachers were consulted and asked to make suggestions.

The next step was to plan and execute the campaign to let the public know the needs of the school and the plans which the board was offering as the solution to many problems connected with inadequate facilities.

A slide show was made and shown to numerous civic and citizen groups. The Devil's River News and the Caballo Diablo carried informative articles and editorials.

The board stressed communication and honesty in their request for the coming bond election. As president Jimmy Condra put it, "We're out of alternatives." An interested citizens' group actively promoted the bond passage.

As time grew near, there was no way to predict the outcome. It was a total community involvement to get the issue passed. And passed it was, by a comfortable majority.

The work with the architects continued through the school year on a schedule which they had set. The entire school board went to New York City to secure the bond rating in December.

The plans were finalized and ready for the bidding in late June, 1984. In the picture below, the board of trustees look over the final plans during a meeting with the architects on June 11.

Staff plays part in student activities

THREE LITTLE MICE. Entering the spirit of the occasion, snack bar staff members Josie Emiliano, Mary Tabarez, and Frances Moore add a touch of Halloween to serving.

PLAYING THE PART. High school secretary Cynthia Keel joined the cast of the musical GREASE and sings the Rydell school song at dress rehearsal with Patsy Perez and Javier Flores.

HAT DAY. In pep rally, high school aides Pat Hanna and Shirley Badgett with substitute Nancy Tittle do their part to add to the fun and spirit.

SPEECH MEET. Preparing to judge, special reading aide Sue Smith looks over the judging sheets.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK. (center left) Middle school custodian Oscar Garcia unloads a box of new chairs.

COACH'S ROOM. In charge of keeping the good food on the table for coaches and judges during the Speech Meet, Shirley Badgett gets the cheese soup ready.

JUST WAITING: This group of Junior High boys poses on the grass in front of the high school while they wait their turn to the band concert and ice cream social.

The halls are crowded and very noisy. Students are putting up decorations on their classroom doors or working inside the classrooms to get the decorations ready. Some doors are already decorated.

Mr. Robert Sosa's room is putting up a fireplace. Coach Richard Lopez's class is making a Santa for their "West Texas Christmas" door. Mr. Reed Jennings' door has a Christmas tree made of paper with students' pictures on it.

Mrs. Stephanie James' class gets a nativity scene ready to put on their door as Coach Nancy Womack's class puts up the Claus family—baby, papa, and mama Claus.

The door of Mrs. Kay Clifton's room is decorated with a Christmas tree crocheted of yarn with pictures of the class as ornaments.

Angels singing "Merry Christmas" go up on Mrs. Carol Love's door. Mrs. Alice Cox's class adjusts their musical Christmas card door so that the card plays music when it is opened.

Outside Mrs. Melinda Valkonen's room, boys try to engineer an evergreen wreath into place on the door. The letters "Merry Christmas" are carefully placed on the art room door by an eighth grade study hall group.

Up and down the hall, teachers supervise the progress of the door decoration and/or tell the extra students roaming the halls to get back in the classrooms.

And so, Christmas comes to the halls of the junior high school once again during the fourth annual door decoration contest sponsored by the junior high student council.

Andy Galindo, Raul Capuchin, Pancho Galvan, and Joe Vela construct a fireplace for Mr. Robert Sosa's door.

NJHS inducts seventeen

New members of the National Junior Honor Society were tapped a day before the induction on February 23. According to Tammy Howard, "That was when the shock came. DuWayne Castro came in the class and pinned a rose to my shirt and said, 'Congratulations! You are being inducted into the NJHS, and you should consider it an honor.'"

Just knowing she was being considered made Michelle McEwen "nervous and up-tight about the whole thing."

DuWayne Castro, NJHS president, served as master of ceremonies. To begin, Justin Condra led the pledge of allegiance. Next Julie Jackson introduced the guest speaker, Bruce Kerbow.

Then Amy Arebalo summarized the NJHS'S activities for the year, followed by other brief talks given by Michelle Adams, Delma Chavez, Cindy Doran, Zane Dunnam, and Rosa Trevion.

A reception honoring new members and their parents was held immediately following the induction of the 17 new members in the home economics department.

Mrs. Diann Keller's seventh grade home economics class made various candies, cookies, Mexican snacks, and hors d'oeuvres which were served with coffee and punch.

CVAE builds house

The junior high and high school CVAE classes built a teacher house this year, starting the second six weeks. This was a major project which involved many steps.

The first step was choosing the location, followed by measuring and laying out the dimensions for the house.

Next, the boys had to dig a ditch for the foundation. After the foundation, they put down the subfloor and the floor.

They built the walls at the shop and then carried them to the site and put them up.

The trusses for the roof were next, then the roof itself. The junior high class helped in all these steps.

At the end of school, the house was nearly finished, lacking the driveway and the finish work inside.

Even though they were busy building the house, the CVAE classes held their annual toy drive. It was even more successful than the first year. Toys and money came in very quickly after they issued the request.

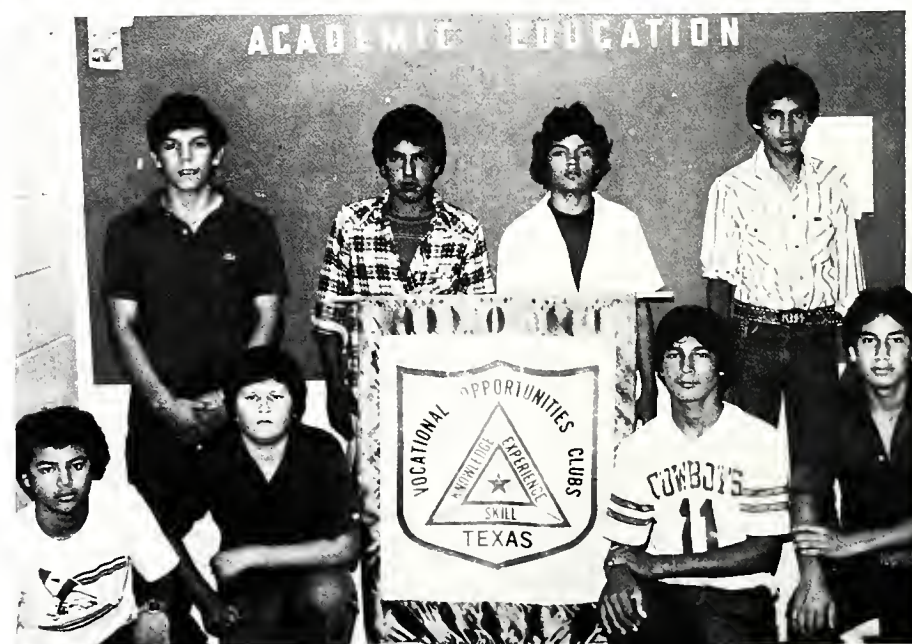

Not only did the boys learn, but they contributed their services to helping other people and to a house that will be used and enjoyed in the future.

Art show added to fair

The annual science fair which is given to learn more about science and history added an art show this year.

Earth science project was required to have three posters—one for the hypothesis, one explaining the project, and one with the conclusion.

The history projects were over anything to do with Texas or American history. They were required only to have a paper explaining the project.

The art show included categories in lettering, advertising posters, conservation posters, and logos.

The science part of the fair was moved to the Old Gym this year and the snack bar devoted to the history exhibits and the art show.

Making Christmas

During the Christmas season, many classes made items for giving. Among these was the homemaking class, which made stuffed animals.

This involved cutting, sewing, and stuffing. The results were quite "lovable."

The homemaking students also gave a

Art classes made pottery.

The choir gave a Christmas program, and the CVAE class collected toys for the needy.

Fifth graders learn basic water safety

Fifth grade P.E. class enjoyed a seven day course in basic water safety during the last weeks of school. Mrs. Melissa Teaff instructed them on basic safety around a pool or a small craft. They learned to save a victim from the bank or in waist deep water—non-swimmer rescues. Most received Red Cross water safety cards.

"They really enjoyed it—learned some safety," said Coach Bill Dempsey. "I hope we can continue to offer the course."

'Care Bears' sing feelings

The first grade musical program, given just before school was out, featured songs about Care Bears and Rainbows. Students dressed in rainbow colored T-shirts.

"Friendship Bear says, 'You're not alone when I'm around. I'll be your best friend.'"

"Grumpy Bear says, 'There is nothing wrong with being grumpy if that's the way you feel today.'"

"Love-a-lot Bear says, 'I L-O-V-E love yu and I'll K-I-S-S you 'cause I L-O-V-E love you all the time.'"

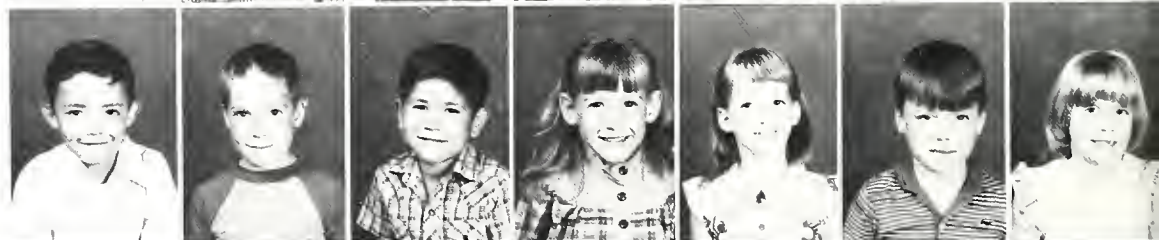

SEQUENCE. Below, Care Bears Jennie Noriega and Billy Scbok and Rainbow Victoria Richardson stand up while (top right) Jose Esquivel and Miguel Luna try to be quiet and are surprised when the rainbow falls from the stage.

HOMEWARD BOUND. Ready to go home with their valentines are Jamie Wilson, Patsy Sanchez, Gina Talamantes, and Stephen Ponsetti from Mrs. Linda Lopez's second grade.

BALLOONS. Making the valentine party festive, balloons also make waiting to go home more exciting for second graders waiting in the hall with substitute Mrs. Jennine Crites.

SEE MY VALENTINES. Kindergarteners Stevie Chavarria, Jeffrey Surber, and Juan Zurita have their valentines all ready to take home with them.

Valentine's makes hit

February 14 was a day of excitement for elementary students. They arrived at school carrying their bags of valentines to exchange with classmates.

Teachers had made individual heart carriers for each child's valentines.

Elementary homerooms had parties with cherry punch and heart-shaped sugar cookies, brought and served by the mothers of students.

Teachers passed out boxes of valentine candies, and youngsters enjoyed reading the sayings on the candy hearts.

About the Valentine's Day activities, Brandon Lock said, "I was really surprised."

Some children were most impressed by the cookies and valentines. Others liked the punch and stickers best. One girl spoke for many when she said, "I liked all of them."

A special treat for Mrs. Cathy Mooney's room was a visit from the clown who brought balloons.

STILL GOING STRONG. After school and parties, Jason Marley, Cody Renfro, and Devoni Doran from Mrs. Donna Hill's first grade room indulge in a bit of horse play in the hall.

Super Stars

Escalante wins gold, silver

Highlighting a super track season, long distance specialist junior Jose Escalante finished the season with a second place finish in the 3200 M run at the state track meet.

Jose ran his personal best by over nine seconds. His time was 9:36.50 which was also a school record.

Up to that point, Jose had consistently won first in the 1600 M and the 3200 M in every track meet he had entered this season.

After running the 3200 M at state, Jose also placed seventh in the 1600 M run later that night. The first race had taken a lot out of him because he ran so hard.

All season, Jose had been setting and breaking records, his own as well as others.

He is a one sport athlete, according to Roy Evans, who said, "It takes a special breed to be a distance runner, and Jose has been a very hard worker since junior high."

Evans continued, "Jose is very dedicated. We give him his workouts, and he follows them, but he always runs a lot on his own—in the morning or just whenever he can. He's a very disciplined kid."

When asked early in the season whether all the running was worth it, Jose answered, "It all depends on if I make it to state. If I do, then it will be worth it."

And it was worth it.

Jones makes Super Team

Senior Rodney Jones was named to the All West Texas Super Team. This honor follows

Rodney Jones

ed being named to the All West Texas Team for the second consecutive year.

Rodney found out about the honor, he said, when "Mom woke me up at about seven o'clock in the morning."

This was Monday morning, January 2, 1984, when the super team selections came out in the San Angelo Standard Times, which stated that Jones was considered to be one of the best small school linemen in West Texas.

One of Bronco football team's captains, Rodney was a two-way all-district lineman and also made the All Concho team, a new team that covers the West Texas area. For this team, area coaches make recommendations and sports writers then use these and their own observations to select the team.

During his sophomore year, Rodney got all-district honorable mention on offense. As a junior, he made the all-district first team on offense and the second team on defense.

Super dogs

Several special drug dogs helped keep the campus free of drugs this year.

Shown above is Chip being welcomed by the third period journalism class on his first visit to the school.

Walker came most often, but retired and was replaced by Penny. Buddy and Thunder also visited the campus.

French,

SUPERSTARS! This is a term used for people who not only do their jobs, but do them better than anyone else. To be considered a superstar, one must be singled out by people in high positions.

Coaches and administrators choose the superstars of basketball. Although the girls didn't advance to post-district play, they did manage to place all five starters on the 6 AAA team, as starters of honorable mention.

Junior Lea Whitehead was selected to the all-district team. Averaging 8 points per game, Lea said, "It is really an honor to be chosen to the team since we have such a tough district."

Senior Lorri French was also selected to the all-district team. She averaged almost 20 points per game and was a real shooting threat inside and outside. Although she was sometimes double and triple teamed, she could always Junior Jose Escalante starts race at state track meet.

Heffernan state third

Super sophomore Gina Heffernan did Sonora proud by placing third at the state track meet in the 1600 M run.

This followed winning first in district and regional, setting new records in both events. All season, Gina had been winning not only the 1600 but also the 3200 M run.

"I chose to run the 1600 M at regional," she said, "because I like it better. I thought it would tire me out to run both. There were girls who had run a 5:37 before who didn't even place because they ran the 3200 first."

Throughout the season, Gina earned a reputation for being very cool and relaxed before a race. At the state meet, Gina said she was nervous "but not until I was on the track. I knew the competition would be tougher, so I had to run better than at regional."

That she did. Her fastest time to that point was 5:37, but in the state race, she improved her time to 5:31. The winning time was 5:20—Gina's goal for next year.

Brittain super stars manage to get free to help the team score.

Seniors Kristi Hill and Judy Merrill and junior Debbie Bible received honorable mention.

In addition to being on the all-district team, Lorri was chosen to play in the Texas Girls' Coaches Association all-stars game in Fort Worth July 7.

On the boys' team, senior Jeff Brittain was named an all-district player. Jeff was chosen most valuable player at many tournaments and played almost all of every game, contributing much to Sonora's offense and defense, scoring many points and blocking many shots.

Jeff also received the Nathan's award for football and was named to the all-district defense team and received honorable mention on the offense team. He served as a football captain.

In addition, at the all-sports banquet, Jeff received the basketball award and the best all-around athlete award.

Lorri received the all-sports banquet basketball award for girls and the best all-around girl athlete award.

For the third year, Lorri qualified for state in track. Although she was ineligible to participate in UIL athletics her sophomore year because of a move, she managed to accumulate over 52 track medals. As a freshman at Klondike, Lorri went to state in the 800 and 1600 M relays. As a junior, she qualified for state in the 100 M hurdles. This year, she qualified in the 800 M run and placed seventh in the state meet.

Both Jeff and Lorri were also excellent students and were chosen as the Army Scholarship/Athletic Excellence Award recipients.

Superstars, indeed!

Year around job

Cheerleading used to be seasonal, but not anymore. For the varsity cheerleaders, it starts in June with practice, camp, making posters, and learning routines.

During Two-a-days, the girls make cookies for the varsity boys. They also made a float for the Sutton County Days parade.

They furnished cokes and water for the visiting cheerleaders during football home games.

They sold ribbons, as usual, for the student council, and they sponsored several victory dances.

The cheerleaders helped the school in other ways, too. They assembled the basketball tournament booklets, sponsored a sock hop after the GREASE performance, and made welcome signs for the speech tournament.

In the spring, they put signs in the varsity dressing rooms before all district home basketball games and were on hand to cheer the teams.

They made locker stickers for spring sports and gave out the ribbons, medals, and trophies for the Bronco Relays and the girls' district track meet, and decorated for the All Sports Banquet.

Last, they made large signs for state UIL winners in academics and track.

Muddy game fun

Broncos get sweet revenge

The game the Broncos probably enjoyed playing most of the season was the last one. In a great finale, they closed their season with a victory of 45-34 over Ozona.

WONDERING. As the Broncos come out onto the field for the Mason game, Coach Jerry Hopkins waits.

The field was wet and muddy, making traction difficult. By half time the uniforms were more muddy than not. Trainers were busy scraping mud out of clogged cleats.

"It was fun," said senior Tino Martinez of playing in the mud.

Even with the less than optimum field conditions, the game was the highest scoring game of the season.

Although it did not decide a district title, the victory was sweet revenge for the Broncos who were defeated by the Lions in the final game of the previous season.

Senior Mike Polocek put it this way. "I always enjoy playing Ozona because I know just about everyone on their team. It seems almost like an intra-squad scrimmage."

PRE-GAME ACTION. Trainer Billy Laxton monitors the warm-up exercises before the first home game.

PRACTICE. During an August practice, Drew Wallace (19) passes the ball to Joe Mike Noriega (27) on a pitch play.

RECEIVER. In his first game since an injury took him out of the Mason game, Jessie Guerra waits for a pass from Jeff Brittain in the Ballinger game.

OVER. The game with Ballinger is over and with it Bronco hopes of a district championship.

HEARTBREAK. As Coach Kevin James comes to console Rodney Jones after the disappointing loss to Ballinger, Matt Gilly wonders what is wrong with Uncle Rodney.

CLAP COUNT. After the Ballinger game, the Broncos form for their spirit clap count.

INSTRUCTIONS. Coach Jerry Hopkins tells Esau Ramirez (26) and Drew Wallace (19) a pass pattern.

Final moments

The Broncos ended the season with a 6-4 overall record and 2-3 in district.

The three district defeats came in the last few minutes of the game.

In the game with Crane, the Broncos had the game won by 3 points with 1:32 left in the last quarter. The Crane split end caught a long wobbly pass for a touchdown. Then they made the extra point, giving them a 7-3 victory.

The next last minute defeat was the bitterest. They had hopes of making it to bi-district playoffs if they could defeat the highly rated Ballinger Bearcats.

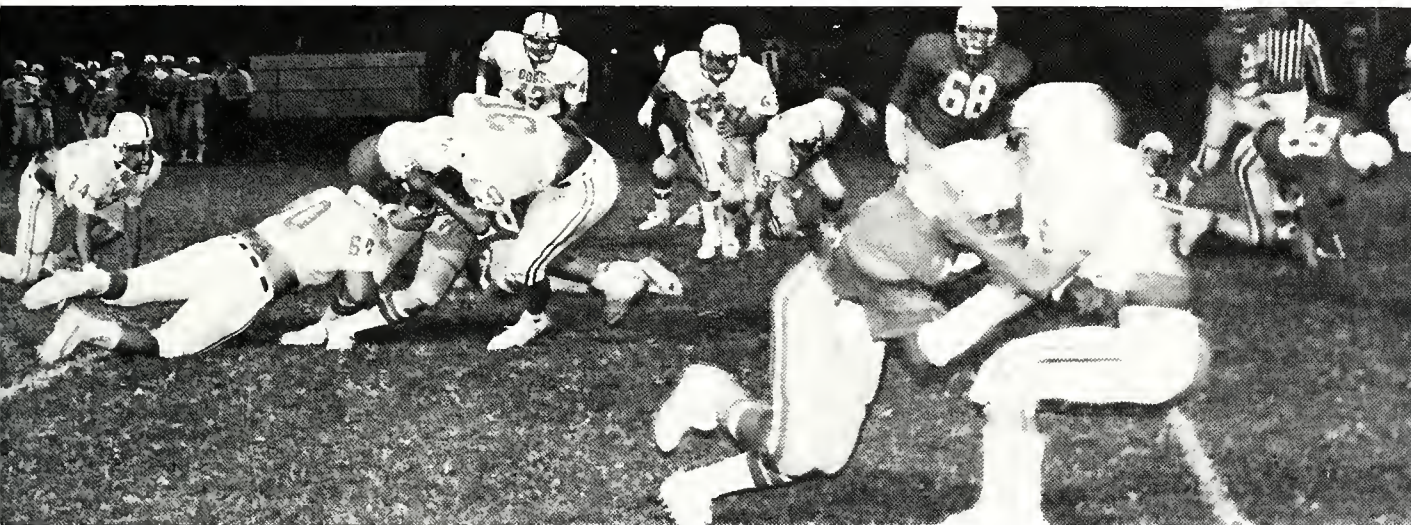

The high point of this game, and probably of the entire season, came in the fourth quarter with 5:43 left to play. Jeff Brittain scored the second touchdown for the Broncos and then made a two point conversion to put the Broncos ahead by 15-14.

At this point, the Sonora stands went crazy. It looked as if the Broncos were going to defeat the top team in the district.

The thrill of victory didn't last long, however. Bronco defense just couldn't hold the strong Ballinger offense after this.

This pattern was repeated in the Colorado City game which the Broncos had won until the last few minutes of the game when CC scored to put them ahead 22-19.

DOWNED. In the Coahoma game which the Broncos won 32-18, Jeff Brittain is tackled. (Number 68 is Daniel Garza, number 58 Robert Mittel.)

ON TO VICTORY. Mike Poloczek (49) carries the ball for yardage toward a touchdown in the Ozona game. Coming in behind is Tino Martinez (38).

Good finish

The junior varsity team finished their season with a high shut-out of the Ozone Lions by 29-0. This was a long awaited rematch of the season opener which the Broncos lost 0-8.

The JV team beat every team they played—but not every time they played them. They lost two games, the one to Ozone and one to Eldorado 0-23.

In both cases, they came back with rematch games and turned the defeat into victory.

The junior varsity finished their season with an excellent 6-2 record. According to Coach Roy Evans, "The team had a great desire to compete and win."

The freshman team played three games of which they won two and lost one. Like the junior varsity, they defeated every team they played, but did not win every game.

JUST WAITING. Darryl Moore studies his helmet as he waits to go back into the Junction game.

Not a fan's year

For the fans, the varsity boys' basketball season was not an outstanding success. They played 23 games, won 9 and lost 14. In fact, they took some very severe losses against Ballinger and Colorado City in particular.

In spite of this, according to Coach Primo Gonzalez, they showed character throughout the season—never pouted or cried, just went on and played.

The team had a lot of underclassmen who had to play against upperclassmen from other schools. It also lacked height when compared to the big boys on Crane's, Coahoma's, and Colorado City's teams.

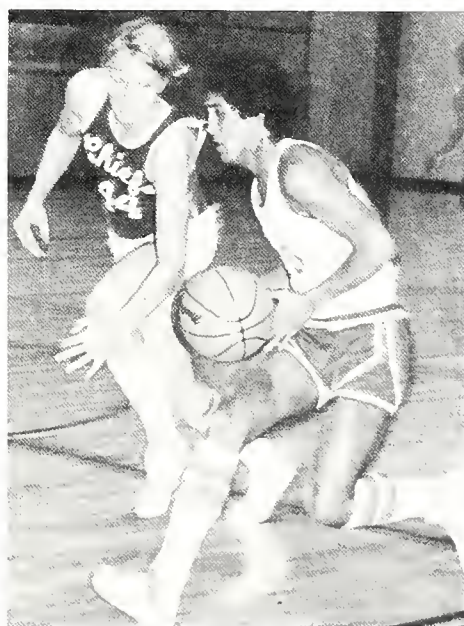

WARMING UP. The Broncos practice shooting before the last game with Crane which they lost 58-67.

Losing with pride

STRUGGLE. Kristi Hill and an Eldorado Eaglette vie for the ball during the second game with Eldorado.

"Silence is golden" could well have been the motto of the varsity girls. The bus rides to and from out-of-town games were very quiet.

This was a part of Coach Clyde Dukes' philosophy. He felt that if the girls acted "silly" on the way to games, they would continue to do so during the games.

The first district game, which was against Coahoma, was a real breath taker. With 14 seconds left, senior Lora Lea Kordzik made a shot that put the Broncos ahead for a final score of 55-53.

Many other games were very close—many losses by only a few points.

The Bronco girls finished second in the first half of district when, previously undefeated in district play, they lost to Crane by only 2 points.

The second half of district proved to be much tougher than the first. The Broncos had only two home games, for one thing.

They began the second half with a 39-58 loss to Coahoma. Beset by illness and injury, the girls couldn't seem to really get their game going.

Next, they lost to district champs, Crane, by only 3 points.

In a season which ended with a 17-9 record, the bitterest loss was the last game in which Coahoma squelched Bronco hopes for second in district and chance to go into bi-district competition.

So, the season closed in disappointment but with senior Judy Merrill's admonition to "Keep you heads up and remember we are Lady Broncos."

PRACTICE. During the Speech Meet, it is practice as usual for the Crane game. Anita Balch tries to get through Debbie Bible's defense (both juniors).

JV's play to win have very good season

The junior varsity girls' basketball team played a total of 21 games, winning 15 and losing just 6. They had a very good season.

The freshman girls' team's record was not quite so good. They won 6 and lost 4—still not a bad record.

The junior varsity boys had a good season with 17 wins and 8 losses.

Both JV teams showed a lot of improvement and a great spirit. They played hard and they played to win.

Reaching high, two to regional

The boys' doubles team of Miles Miller and Larry Jennings advanced to regional after winning first in the District 6AAA tennis meet in Crane April 16-17.

Their victory was not an easy one according to Larry Jennings, who said of the finals match with Crane's team of Tovar and Garcia, "They almost beat us. They won the first set, and then we came back and won the second. They had us down 4-0 in the third, though, and we were great enough to come back and win 7-5."

At the final district meet, the girls played well enough to help the boys to an overall second place.

Cathy Doran was fourth in singles, and Lea Whitehead and Rosemary Dominguez were the regional alternate doubles team. Placing fourth were the team of Debbie Bible and Jane Penalver.

The combined girls and boys also placed second in the Big Lake tourney and first in the Sonora tournament.

The JV tennis team brought back the overall team championship trophy from Crane.

Number one seeded Rene Ramirez proved deserving of the seed. He won the finals by defeating Bobby Heredia of Crane.

Sonora's second singles entry Chris Artiga won third place in the tourney.

The doubles team of Wayford Tyler and Shannon Turner won first place through excellent volleying, placement, and consistency.

The other doubles team of Joe Will Ross and Doug Martin won third place to give Sonora some extra points.

In the girls' doubles, Janet Barleemann and Angie Carrasco won second. Cindy Rojas took third in singles and Karla Jungk fourth.

Broncos play catch-up season

The Bronco golf team ended up in third place in district after the final 18 holes of district play in Big Spring.

Trying to catch up seemed to be the story of the season for the team. After the first district tournament, they were out of second place by 20 strokes.

The next three matches, the Broncos fell even farther behind with Crane and Ozona holding down first and second while the Broncos worked to gain ground.

Going into the last tournament, they were 41 strokes behind second place. They closed the gap by 23 points to finish only 18 points behind Ozona for third.

The weather played a very big role this year. In every tournament, the wind blew. In Colorado City, it blew about 40 miles per hour with gusts up to 60 miles per hour. Since Colorado City is surrounded by mostly farm land, the dirt and sand blew all day long.

Crane was another long day with the sand blowing again.

According to Jeff Brittain, "Overall, the Broncos had a pretty good year. The golf team had to put up with the weather and still ended the season with a very impressive finish."

Jessie Paredes was placed on the All-District team.

DISGUSTED. Jeff Brittain has just chipped up on the green and ran it way past the hole on the other side. He sits just looking at this putt coming back.

Eleven to regional, two to state, one state winner

Two years ago, a group of freshman and sophomore track girls set themselves a goal. They realized it when they won the district 6 AAA track championship.

Senior Casey Crites got the Broncos off to a good start as she leaped 17'4" in the long jump for first place. It was her personal best and a new district record.

Bonnie Jackson then threw 30'4" in the shot put to capture third place for the second straight year.

Senior Lorrie French tied for sixth in the high jump at 4'8".

In the first running event, Gina Heffernan and Lori Webster took first and fourth respectively.

The 400 M relay team of Leah Evans, Becca Powers, Kate Mathews, and Casey Crites ran a 52.65 to take second place.

In a one-two Bronco finish, Lorri French took the gold medal in the 800 M with 2:27.9, while freshman Gay Ann Dobbs came in second.

Defending regional and district champion Lorri French successfully defended her title in the 100 M low hurdles. Junior Anita Balch was fourth with her personal best time of 17.01.

In the next race, junior Leah Evans placed third for the bronze medal, and freshman Michelle McCleery took seventh in the 100

M dash.

The 800 M relay team of Juniors Deffie Shannon and Becca Powers, Casey Crites, and Gay Ann Dobbs won silver medals.

In the 400 M race, freshman Kate Mathews came in fourth, and Michelle McCleery came in fifth in the 200 M.

The Broncos cinched the district title when Gina and Della Heffernan came in first and second in the 1600 M run, followed by Mary Ann Rogers who placed sixth.

In the last event, the 1600 M relay team of Casey Crites, Becca Powers, Anita Balch, and Lorri French outdistanced the field and took the gold medals with a 4:14 time.

Of the eleven regional qualifiers, two qualified for state, and one won at state. Gina Heffernan won second at the state meet in the 1600 M run. Lorri French finished seventh in the 800 M race.

A gold season

The Bronco boys' varsity strength lay in the double gold medal winner and record setter, junior Jose Escalante. Its weakness was in the field events, despite some very good performances and medal winners. Points in pole vault, discus, shot-put, and long jump were all necessary to a winning team score.

Jose Escalante won the 1600 M and 3200 M runs in every track meet, usually setting a new record for that meet and breaking his own best time records. By the end of the season, Jose's fame had spread throughout West Texas, and he had the second best time in the state.

The Broncos won the Bronco Relays and came in second in District 6 AAA.

Eight boys qualified for regional competition: Mike McBride, Mike Polocek, Eddie Castro, Elpidio Torres, Jim Cooper, Elias Torres, Ricardo Sanchez, and Jose Escalante.

Escalante won first in both his events, the 1600 M and 3200 M runs, at regional. The meet was on a very hot day with extremely high temperatures in the stadium in Odessa, so he did not set or break any records in this meet, but just ran fast enough to win. The highlight of a super track season, Escalante took second place in the 3200 M race in Austin at the state track meet. He ran his personal best of 9:36.50 which is nine seconds better than his previous record and is also a school record.

Escalante also placed seventh in the 1600 M later that night.

He was still not rested from the first race because he ran so hard. Since he was one of the few underclassmen in either race, he will surely be considered the favorite for the gold medal next year.

FIRST PLACE. In the Bronco Relays, junior Jose Escalante hits the ribbon in the 1600 M run—as usual coming in first.

Escalante runs for gold

What does it take to be a long distance runner? Record setter Jose Escalante may have a clue.

"I run a lot," he said. "I don't know how much, but it's a lot."

He explained about the workouts. "We have different workouts—one day pace work, another day cross country, another speed work. Coach Adams posts the workouts and tells us what to work on. We take about a day off every week after the meet."

Jose also works out on his own. He said, "I run at the golf course—in the morning about 5:30 or 6:00. Sometimes four miles, sometimes two. It depends on how I feel or what we did the day before."

During the season, Jose developed a reputation for finishing a race and just walking off—not even acting tired.

Of this, he explained, "I feel tired, all right. I may not look tired, but I am."

He really got started in junior high school. "In seventh grade," he said, "we ran the mile and a half, and I beat everybody. Coach Adams wanted to put me in the 1320, and that's where I started."

Jose doesn't use any particular strategy or method, he says. "I just run the best I can. I don't pay too much attention to the other runners. I'm hoping they're getting tired. I just pace myself."

"I like the outside lane," he continues. "Nobody trips you there or cuts in front."

Jose says that he is not optimistic before a race. "I don't feel too good before a meet—especially when we go to a big meet like San Angelo. I'm mainly nervous."

Asked if he likes running even if it makes him nervous, Jose answered, "I wouldn't be doing it if I didn't."

NOSEMAKER DAY. In the pep rally Noisemaker Day, senior Laura Preston tries junior Carol Cayce's neat horn.

WATER. Tino Martinez quenches his thirst during the warm weather game with Junction.

BALLOONS. The Bronco varsity boys received balloons from Dr. Lonnie Pollard just before the pep rally.

ON THE AIR. Mike Street and Mike Cofield are on the scene of the weekly pep rally, broadcasting from the gym floor.

JUNIOR VARSITY. Carrie Sorenson and Leigh French watch the game with Ballinger in progress sitting on the sidelines.

REGIONAL TENNIS MEET. Reed Jennings and Jerry Johnson wait between matches with seniors Miles Miller and Larry Jennings who are competing in the regional tennis tournament in Odessa.

FROGGY JOB. Niles Patel works to scrape the remaining muscle off the bones of the frog he has been working on off and on since the first six weeks getting it ready to mount for the final project due May 1, when the frog bones are to be mounted and labeled.

FINISHED PRODUCT. Getting a close look at some of the projects which have been handed in, Craig Hopper examines the frog skeleton which has been mounted on cardboard with all bones labeled.

A frog by any other name wouldn't smell any sweeter

A frog was not just a frog to biology students. It was a . . . well, a year long project and a little more.

Some students named their frogs—Ozzy, Fozzie, and My Frog Bob, for example. It sort of “personalized” them.

In their own words, the frog project went as follows.

“From the first six weeks, we’ve worked on them off and on. We have to have the bones mounted by the first week in May.”

“It was the smell that got me at first—the formaldehyde—especially first period. I never eat breakfast.”

“After you work with them awhile, you wouldn’t want to work on some other frog.”

“First we dissected them . . .”

“ . . . took all sorts of nasty things out of them.”

“ . . . skinned ’em.”

“ . . . took the eye ball out.”

“ . . . took out the tissue in the ear drum and made slides of the tissue.”

“ . . . to see what it looked like.”

“ . . . to learn how to use a microscope—at least, that’s what I learned.”

“Then we ripped the meat off the bones.”

“We had to know the parts of the mouth.”

“We cut open the stomach to see what kind of food it ate last. Some had ants and mosquitoes . . . caterpillar, june bug, beetle, lady bugs . . .”

“Mine was full of eggs.”

“Mine was fat—slimy, yellow stuff.”

“We tried to revive ’em, but we couldn’t bring ’em around.”

“ . . . more or less mutilated the poor devils.”

“We made crude jokes about the frogs which Coach Sessom didn’t appreciate.”

I had an extremely muscular frog . . .”

“ . . . ’specially after we took the skin off him.”

“We used gloves.”

“Some people did, but he said it would be easier if we didn’t.”

“You have no idea where this frog has been.”

“We are supposed to scrape the muscle from the bones, mount them on a cardboard.”

This last phase of the project brought new problems.

“When I boiled the bones, they came apart.”

“My mother didn’t like the smell.”

“How did she get her bones so white?”

“When I put bleach in the water to make the bones white, they dissolved.”

“I just picked it up to look at it, and the bones fell off . . . and some of them broke.”

HOMEWARD BOUND. The remains of Ozzy, Fozzie, My Frog Bob, and an unnamed frog are in their containers on their way home with their “owners” to be duly scraped and mounted.

CLOSE-UP. Nilesch Patel holds one of his frog’s feet as he scrapes the muscle off. Lying in the tray is the frog’s jawbone.

SOCK HOP. At right, Sidonna Ridgeway and Steve Harrison swing it. Below, Roger Velez, Steve Harrison, and Terri Williams laugh as Carol Cayce goes down in the limbo rock.

ROCKING. Above, Carol Cayce swings into the air; at right, Chris Karnes, Javier Flores, Traci Cascadden, and Terri Williams rock to the rhythm.

'Rock a-round the clock'

"Rock a-round the clock," and other hit tunes of the fifties resounded through the old gym during the noon sock hop January 6.

Not only did the music have a fifties beat, but students and teachers were dressed in such garb as poodle skirts, pedal pushers, penny loafers, and saddle oxfords. Girls wore pony tails, and boys looked "cool!" with their hair slicked back, obviously having used "greasy kid stuff."

A drink stand at the door of the gym handed out free cokes. The music was lively and enthusiasm ran high. Dancers revived the be-bop and the limbo stick.

The cafeteria became a malt shop for the day with a menu of hamburgers, french fries, and chocolate shakes.

The following day, a hoola hoop contest in the parking lot drew a crowd of contestants and excited spectators.

The purpose of these activities was to arouse interest in attending the speech and drama department production of the musical GREASE. And it worked. All three performances played to full houses.

Another sock hop after the Saturday night show rounded out the fifties week, which was a bright spot in the school year.

AROUND THE CLOCK. In front, Steve Harrison and Carol Cayce make a turn; left Patsy Perez and Javier Flores; right, Barry Graves.

FREE COKES. Becca Powers, Cathy Doran, and Lea Whitehead accept a coke as they prepare to enter the gym for the fifties sock hop.

BOPPERS. Craig Hopper and Lora Lea Kordzik, Kathryn Parker and Doug Martin with Roger Velez showing between—all enjoy the fifties beat.

Half the fun backstage

It has been said that half the fun of going to any special event or place is getting there. This is certainly true of being in a school event such as a concert or play or contest. In fact, that is what extracurricular activities are all about.

The fun and the value come more from the rehearsals and learning the parts than from the actual performance.

And it is not usually the performance itself which proves most memorable to the participants, but more likely incidents and anecdotes which happened at rehearsals or in getting a contest ready and running it.

Students were involved in band and choir concerts and contests, in drama productions and the speech meet.

With the work and the responsibility these activities required, light moments of fun and comradery made the fondest memories.

LATEST RATINGS. Band director Forester Halamicek hands ratings to junior Leah Evans during the solo and ensemble contest. At the headquarters table are workers Danny Hulsey, Albert Fierro, Robert Fierro, Leah Evans, Karen Schaffer, and Kathy Richter.

Telling it like it is means taking a look "backstage."

BROADWAY. Getting ready for the choir's spring concert featuring Broadway hit tunes, freshmen Prissy Samaniego and Teri Williams help set up the microphones for the final rehearsal against the Broadway backdrop.

Riding the rodeo trail

In the spring, some young fancies turn to thoughts of rodeo. After track and tennis, they go home to their rodeo arenas and practice til dark—on such things as riding barrels and poles, roping and steer wrestling.

"We practice the time we have," said Becca Powers, "which isn't very much."

Lea Whitehead practices about every afternoon, she said. "I exercise the horses and take them around the patterns. I try to keep them in good shape."

"About the only time I don't practice is during football," said Houston Powers. "I practice every day after I get out of school—me and my dad. He's kind of like my coach."

According to Houston, he comes from a family of rodeoers. "My grandfather, my dad, my mom—the whole family are rodeoers. It's a year around deal now. I've been doing it since I was nine or ten."

Becca, Houston, and Lea along with Anita Balch, Cathy Doran, Mike Friess and sometimes Marshall Tyler and Abe Caruthers, make up a rodeo team.

From mid March through April and May, they and other high school rodeoers follow the Texas High School Rodeo Association circuit. They enter from one to three rodeos per weekend—when they don't interfere with track or tennis meets.

"I just do my homework on the road or in the motel," said Lea.

"Some schools recognize rodeo as a sport," explained Lea. "It's a letter just like basketball, and you will have a sponsor."

Although student rodeoers win money," according to Houston, "you spend more money in high school rodeoing than you make. Your gas and motel rooms take up what you make."

At regional rodeo competition, instead of medals like in UIL sports events, rodeoers win large trophy belt buckles with rubies on each side. At the state level, they get trophy saddles.

Anita, Becca, Lea, and Houston qualified for state last year and this year. Houston was sixth in state in 1983 and won first in regional in steer wrestling this year.

Lea sums up the lure of the rodeo trail. "It's fun winning the belt buckles and saddles and money and stuff. You like to go. You meet people. It's just a fun sport 'cause you're doing many different things."

POLES. During rodeo practice, Anita Balch takes her horse around the poles.

PRACTICE. Lea Whitehead runs barrels in a practice session at the Powers arena.

Steer Wrestling

Regional Texas High School Rodeo steer wrestling champ, Houston Powers, explains steer wrestling, or bulldogging, as it is commonly called.

"You have to throw him down, but you don't have to tie him. It's time. You've got to throw him as fast as possible."

As to the size of the animals, Houston said, "The steers will weigh anywhere from 700 to 800 pounds in high school rodeo. In pros, they get bigger cattle."

"It's not how much strength you have," he explained. "It's the technique. If you're big, it gives you more advantage."

In bulldogging, Houston said, "you ride about 30 to 40 miles per hour alongside the steer and change from the horse to the back of the steer, grabbing the horns. Your feet will finally hit the ground, and you slow him with your feet."

Then it is a matter of throwing the steer to the ground.

Houston's final comment was, "It's a fun sport, and I like doing it."

PREPARING FOR STATE RODEO. After winning the regional steer wrestling championship, senior Houston Powers practices for state competitions in a local arena and demonstrates the technique of throwing the steer.

GOLD MEDAL. Senior Tammy Duren smiles as state UIL journalism director Bobby Hawthorne places the gold medal around her neck for first in feature writing at the state UIL Literary-Academic Meet.

Tammy Duren wins state UIL

Newspaper, yearbook win awards

Writing her way into the winners' circle, senior Tammy Duren won first place in Conference AAA feature writing at the state UIL Literary-Academic meet April 27.

After winning third in district, Tammy went on to win first in the regional event, making her SHS's sole state UIL qualifier, one of only three from District 6-AAA.

Tammy's achievement climaxed several honors which the journalism department received at the ILPC in March. The Caballo Diablo newspaper received the Award of Distinguished Merit and was chosen Tops in Division for the second consecutive year.

The Bronco yearbook also received the Award of Distinguished Merit and was given a Golden Quill Award for excellence.

Individual achievement awards went to Mary Huckaby-2nd editorial writing; Chris Driskell and John Venable-2nd entertainment review; Zeke Duran-3rd end sheet design; Joe Shannon-2nd and 2nd sports photos; Kurt Kauffman 1st and 3rd portrait photos; Miles Miller 2nd feature photos.

Other vocational students to place in state competition were Javier Garcia, Jaime Castillo, and Danny Flores who were third in the state VOCT Chapter Display.

Bigger, better, older

Bigger and better than ever, the Thirty-eighth Annual Sonora Speech Meet reached capacity with over 400 students attending. According to speech director James Buchanan, "In some events, every available room was in use."

The oldest continuous speech meet in the state, the Sonora meet is a strong tradition in the school and community, which both cooperate in its success.

It is also the only event of the school year in which Sonora students participate strictly behind the scenes—scheduling and setting up the meet and running the meet. The latter includes a variety of duties—even cooking quiche and cheese soup for the lounge for coaches and judges.

For a change, the day of the meet was warm and sunny instead of icy and cold.

QUICHE. Freshman Sandy Blankenship checks on the quiche which is cooking for the coaches' and judges' lounge at the speech meet. They kept a buffet of gourmet treats on the table Friday and Saturday.

BELOW LEFT. Waiting for business, Lee Castro and Gina Black are ready to sell spaghetti dinners at the junior concession stand. BELOW RIGHT. Janice Gomez fixes an hors d'oeuvres plate for the coaches' and judges' lounge.

Enchanted Castle

Sets scene for banquet-prom

The pavillion of the Enchanted Castle rivaled the splendor of a medieval feast. The buffet table was laden with food and featured a large ice sculpture in shape of a swan.

Silver stars, white doves, and streamers hung from the latticed roof, and artificial starlight glittered from the revolving mirror ball above the pavillion.

Castle silhouettes behind stone walls circled the ball room. A castle with lighted "stained glass" windows made a backdrop for taking pictures.

A surprise presentation of the Class of 1984 through slides and music done by Photo Ranch drew a standing ovation.

Tuxedos of many colors and combinations coordinated with the dresses of varied lengths and styles—strapless, ruffled, hoop skirted, and twenties styles with a few tuxedos.

The "nobility" attending the banquet were ably served by the sophomore "serfs" who were appropriately dressed for the part.

Between the banquet and prom, a "fender-bender" on 290 in front of the 4-H barn heightened the excitement of the evening for those involved. All made it to the banquet, at least for a little while.

The DJ music kept the crowd happy and dancing with a variety running from country to soul, from twist to hard rock, from the schottische and waltz to the bamba and la cumbia. It included New Wave, Spanish numbers by Mas, and the favorite, "Cotton-Eyed Joe."

The program was made up of such numbers as "You and I," "Love Somebody," "Play Me Some Mountain Music," "The Race is On," "Hello," and "Color My World."

The disk jockey interrupted at about 10:30 P.M. with an announcement. "Jose won second in the 3200 M race in Austin in the state track meet with a time of 9:36, which is his best time this year."

Dancers seldom sat down, although many made their way to the punch table from time to time.

Before they knew it, the guests heard over the loudspeaker, "This is the last song of the evening."

Another junior-senior banquet and prom had come to an end. The ball was over.

But not for everyone. The next words from the speaker were "We need all the juniors to hang around to help clean up, so don't run off."

IN LINE. Seniors Florie and Eddie Castro have just arrived at the 4-H building and wait to enter the front door.

SERF. Adding a medieval atmosphere by his dress, sophomore Wayne Collins pours tea for the "nobility."

APPRECIATION. Seniors Melanie Kelly and Judy Merrill tell Jerry and Nancy Johnson how much they enjoyed the photo presentation of the Class of 1984.

FAVORITE. All join in for "Cotton-Eyed Joe."

ELEGANT COUPLE. Enjoying the prom are junior David Bernal and freshman Diana Gonzales.

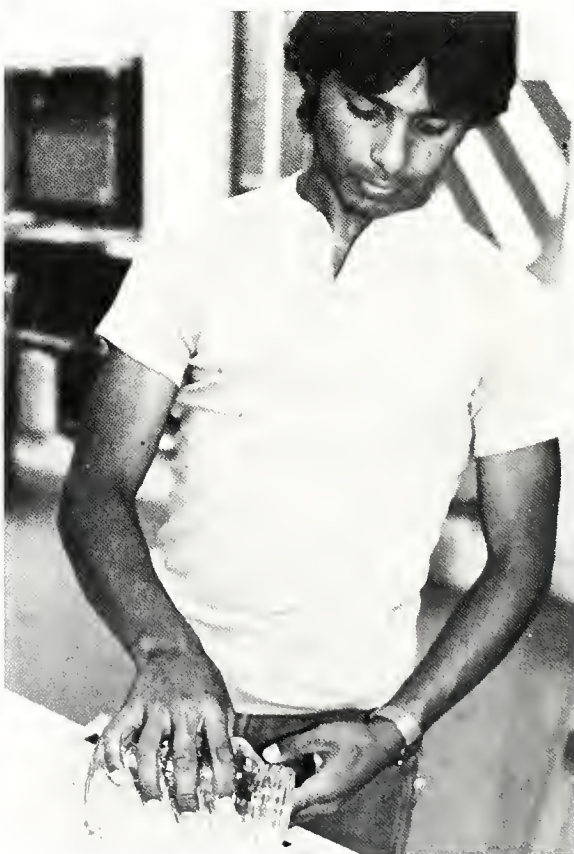

Anita Balch and Joe Will Ross cut the cardboard for the base of the stone walls around the castle.

Onto the cardboard sprayed with adhesive, Debbie Bible and Becca Powers roll out the stone patterned paper.

Artisan at work. Gina Black, carefully applies the tissue paper on the cutout for a "stained glass" window.

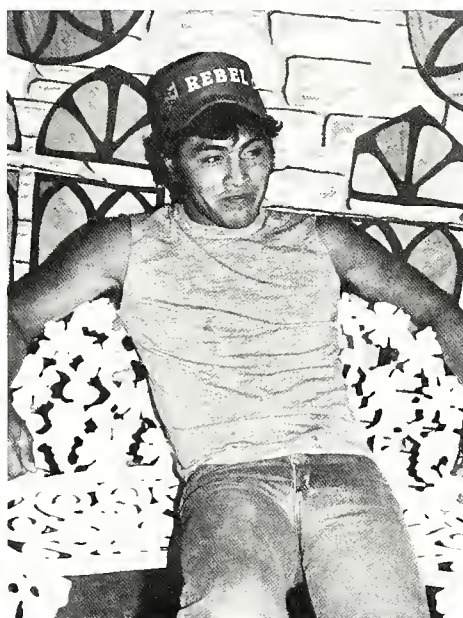

After applying glue to the design, Lee Castro pours glitter onto a decorative shield.

Creating castle cooperative task

Transforming the 4-H barn into an enchanted castle was no small task for the junior class and their sponsors.

The first step, of course, was earning the money. This meant working at the Halloween Carnival and at the speech meet concession stand. It meant making spaghetti, brownies, sandwiches, etc.

For several months before the banquet-prom, juniors spent study hall time and other moments they could spare in the library and art room cutting, painting, glittering.

As the time drew near, they picked up the production tempo and worked evenings and weekends covering cardboard with stone patterned paper and making faux stained glass windows—and cutting and glittering.

Various committees were at work planning and arranging for the food and the tableware, for the invitations and the programs.

Finally came the wonderful day when all those who had been working were rewarded with one more chance to work. The time had come to transport all the parts of the enchanted castle to the 4-H barn and put it together into one impressive effect.

LEFT. Manuel Arredondo moves the ladder to continue work on the latticed top of the pavillion.

ABOVE MIDDLE. The head table and bandstand get the finishing touches in this view from the pavillion.

TOP. In a cooperative effort, Mary Ann Rogers gets the tape while Cathy Doran wraps a pole of the 4-H barn.

Most 'dangerous' class

Probably the most "dangerous" class on the campus is shop—industrial arts.

What with power saws and drills, flying sawdust, glue and lacquer fumes, the potential accidents are unlimited.

However, the casualties on the campus this year were not shop related. They resulted from sports or freak accidents like falling off the goal post or stepping on a tennis ball.

In addition to being the most dangerous class, shop is probably the most safety conscious.

Students learn to respect the tools as they learn to use them. Precautions are as much a part of the course as skills. They wear goggles or masks or gloves as well as aprons to protect themselves and their clothing.

This most dangerous class offers one further risk for which there is very little remedy. It can be and often is "addictive." Most ex-students continue to use the skills they learn in shop for the rest of their lives. For many, like junior high math teacher Robert Sosa, it becomes a satisfying hobby or avocation. For others, it is a useful utilitarian skill for living their lives.

SMOOTHER. Freshman Mickey Sharp sands the stand he is building to get it a little smoother before giving it the finish coat.

ASSEMBLING. Putting together a telephone box, freshman Marshall Tyler adds a screw.

TURNING. Wearing protective goggles, freshman Primo Gonzalez turns a leg on the lathe.

TOGETHER. Freshman Miguel Ramos fits the pieces of a bookend together.

TEAMWORK. The Badillo twins, freshmen Pat and Paul, work together to assemble a toy box. Pat hooks up the power hose as Paul fits the pieces in place.

CVAE builds house

The major project for CVAE students this year was a major project—building a house. They started about six weeks after school had started and worked on it steadily until school was out.

"The first thing we did," said Hugo Lujan, "was to measure the length and the width of the house. After that we dug ditches all around where it had been measured for the house."

"Well, the day came to pour the concrete," according to Danny Flores, "and Mr. Williams, Jaime (Castillo), and Eliot (Nixon) were there. As soon as the rest of the class got there, things started to move. While Mr. Williams shouted instructions, Jaime and Eliot were shoveling the concrete and other workers of the class were directing concrete this way and that."

After putting on the sub floor, the boys built the walls in sections in the CVAE shop and then carried them to the site and put them up.

The next step was to install the trusses which had been made in San Angelo and to put on the decking, tar paper, and finally the shingles on the roof. "You start at the bottom and go up," explained Wesley Skains about the roofing steps.

By the time school was out, the house was nearing completion. To the original plan, they had added a garage and storage room.

As they worked on the driveway getting it ready to be poured on the last day of classes, the CVAE boys agreed that they would rather work on a big project like the house than on several smaller projects as in past years.

In summing up the year's work, Wesley Skains said, "It's been pretty fun. We've learned a lot while we did it."

GETTING UNDERWAY. In the first stage of the CVAE house, the class digs the ditches for the foundation.

FINISHING TOUCHES. On the last of classes in May, the CVAE class gets the driveway ready to have cement poured for the nearly completed house they have built.

MIDWAY. CVAE boys roll tar paper onto the roof of the house they are building, getting it ready for the shingles.

GETTING READY. Elsa Galindo, DECA member, puts ice in the cups for the tea for the HECE-DECA banquet.

"We started the fire about 2:30 in the afternoon," stated DECA member Houston Powers. "Then we pulled it clear across town smoking."

Kevin West, another cook for the DECA-HECE employers' banquet added, "We started cooking the steaks about 4:30 when the fire was right. We had to eat a few of the first ones—to see that they were cooking right."

The "chefs" worked until right up to the hour of the banquet, taking turns in going home to change clothes—then coming back to take their places again at the barbeque grills hauled into the snack bar parking lot for the occasion.

The yearly banquet which honors the employers of DECA and HECE students features steaks cooked by DECA boys which is served with baked potatoes and salad prepared by HECE members. The homemade desserts are contributed by members of both organizations.

Another important part of the preparations is getting the program ready. Various members of both clubs participate in such things as the invocation, welcome, presentations, etc., and make notes to be sure they will not miss any important detail.

The self-catered banquet is served with pride in a cooperative effort of the two cooperative vocational clubs.

FIRE! No alarm, however, because this fire is only going to the snack bar to barbeque steaks for the HECE-DECA banquet.

The girls' locker room is filled with girls putting on make-up, limbering up, bandaging legs, and changing into various colored shorts outfits.

RELIEF. Varsity cheerleader tryouts are over, and the candidates leave the gym floor in good spirits. They now face the wait for the votes to be counted.

"Gosh! I'm so scared. I hope I don't mess up," says one. The occasion is the varsity cheerleader tryouts.

The girls move out into the hall and practice leaps and yells. Then, soon it is time to go into the gym. Each of the 20 cheerleader candidates drew to see which two yells she would lead, and they took their places on the floor under the bleachers to wait their turns. After tryouts came the hardest part of all—waiting for the ballots to be counted. Meeting at school at 4:45, they paced the floor for almost two hours saying, "I wish they'd hurry up."

Sew fun to sew

Homemaking classes made a variety of unusual pillows during the last six weeks—pigs, computers, sharks, cupcakes, football helmets—even a pencil and a baseball glove.

Overheard in third period while these projects were underway were the following.

"Ouch!"

"Comiéntale por abajo."

"It looks better the other way around."

"I poked myself."

"The needle fell."

"Help me put the string in the needle eye."

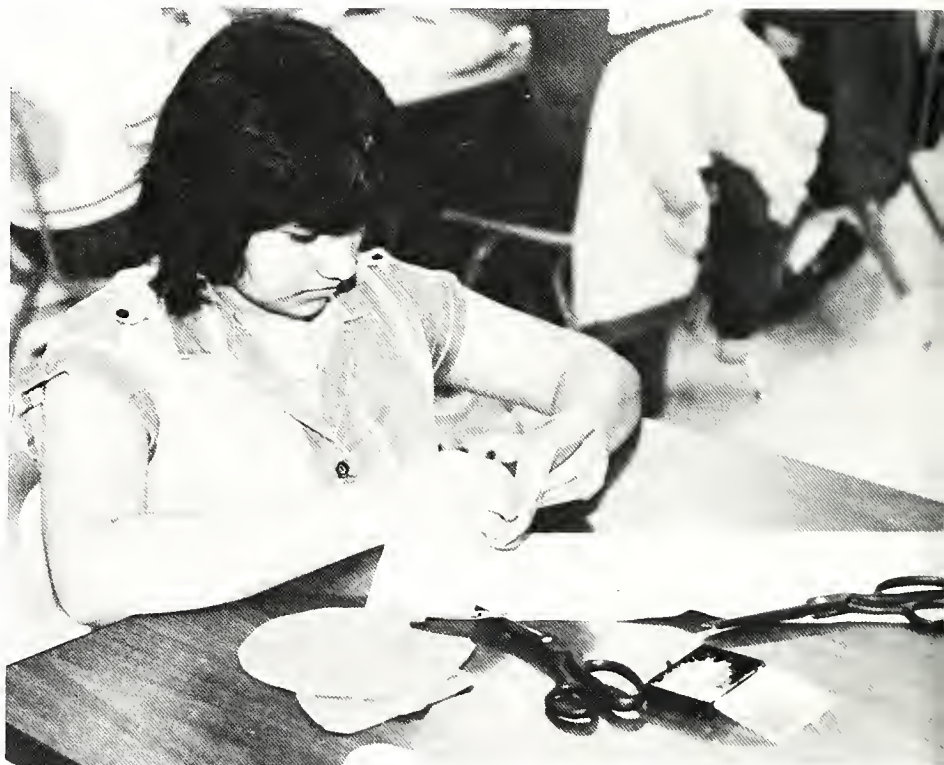

"I like to sew, but it looks better when it's finished."

"Cut out the design first."

"Start sewing where the dark dot is."

And so, the pillows were finished and proudly taken home to adorn bedrooms and sofas.

PILLOW UNDERWAY. Freshman Mary Barron carefully pins a design to the cloth so she can cut it out for ther cupcake pillow.

FRONT: Rosemary Dominguez, Ida Castilleja—treasurer, Rosa Galvan—game chairman, Florie Mesa—vice-president; SECOND: Rachel Castilleja, Yvonne Gamez, Angie Carrasco, Mary Angle—sponsor, Rebecca Glaze, Diana Gonzales; BACK: Prissy Samaniego, Mary Lou Arredondo—secretary, Lane Cayce, David Noriega, Mary Barron, Jerry Jimenez—parliamentarian, Tommie Duran—president.

JUST SEW, SEW. Freshman Jannette Gandar carefully gets the material of her computer pillow ready to sew the seam on the machine.

CUPCAKE. Threading the needle, freshman Mary Barron prepares to baste the frosting on the cupcake pillow she is making in homemaking class.

SHAPING UP. Junior Ismael Sanchez's pillow begins to round out to shape as he stuffs it.

TEAMWORK. DE students Lisa Kelly and Jearld Short, both seniors, work together, Lisa checking the order of groceries while Jearld sacks them at Food Center.

SPANISH CLUB

FRONT: Mary Ann Rogers, Preeti Patel, Betsy Allen, Sidonna Ridgeway, Stacy Snider; SECOND: Mrs. Charlotte Wilson—sponsor, Gina Black, Carol Cayce, Asha Patel, Odilia Garza, Rebecca Powers; BACK: Carrie Sorenson, Anita Balch, Lea Whitehead, Ronnie Pollard, Wayne Hill, Kari Kropp, Debbie Bible, Daniel Garza—president.

Working for the grade

A number of students work not only to make money but to make the DE or HECE grade.

"I love it," said Necia Humphreys about her work as a kindergarten aide.

"I love to work at school because I love being around children," said another kindergarten aide Gloria Paredes.

Ida Coronado worked with fourth and fifth grade special ed. "It's lots of fun. I get along real well with the kids," said Ida.

KINDERGARTEN AIDE. Senior Norma Guerra shows flash cards to Cindy Feagin's class as part of her HECE job as a kindergarten aide.

Pancho Salazar put in a few more hours than the 15 to 22 hours per week that most HECE and DE students worked. He averaged 40 hours a week, seven days a week at JIMCO hauling brine or pipe and working in the yard on the trucks.

"There are lots of good parts about working here," explained Maribel Perez about her job at the SEE Center. "The good points are that it's not very hard and I like to be around kids."

Kelly Ritz enjoyed her job at Dairy Queen. "It's fun," she said, "working there because you meet a variety of people that come in."

In the classroom, the DE students studied marketing and introduction to business.

HECE students studied general job competencies, money management, and taxation.

PICTURE STORY. In her HECE job at the SEE Center, senior Maribel Perez tells the children a story.

SPANISH CLUB

FRONT: Sissy West, Cathy Doran, Valerie Flores, Margarita Valdez, Janice Gomez, Patsy Samaniego; SECOND: Jody Luttrell, Leah Evans, Oscar Gutierrez—sec-treas., Mario Sotelo, Rachel Chavez, Jerry Jimenez, Tino Martinez; BACK: Robert Fierro, Matt Favila—vice-president, Victor Fuentes, Doug Martin, Elpidio Torres, Ruben Garza, Lynn Duckworth.

Gimmicks mark election

"Footloose" Patsy Perez danced her way to the student council presidency in an election campaign marked by gimmicks.

Jody Luttrell's successful bid for the vice-presidency took a celebrity theme with Jody himself entering the stage with fanfare as Michael Jackson.

Boy George (Mike Polocek) and Cyndi Lauper (Judy Merrill) made grand entrances to campaign in Jody's behalf. The famous duo of (Laura) Preston and (Patsy) Samaniego cinched his election with their version of "Home Grown Tomatoes."

The "Your Choice Is Right" show supported Janice Gomez for treasurer, as did a bevy of Dallas type cheerleaders.

Arturo Gandar distinguished himself in his bid for treasurer with more and larger signs than anyone else—ever.

Doug Martin's platform was based on an airline motif, and Cathy Doran balloons floated in the audience.

YOUR CHOICE IS RIGHT. Chris DeMarco, Laura Preston, Lisa Kelly, and Patsy Samaniego support Janice Gomez for treasurer.

"FOOTLOOSE." Dancing into the president's spot, Patsy Perez uses a movie theme song in her election campaign.

STUDENT COUNCIL

FRONT: Laura Preston—treasurer, Judy Merrill—secretary, Ronnie Pollard—vice-president, Tino Martinez—president; SECOND: Lisa Kelly, Tommie Duran, Chris DeMarco, Lesli Webster, Rebecca Powers, Gail Mesa, Shaumarie Scroggins, Kathryn Parker; THIRD: Abel Sanchez, Ruben Garza, Jerry Jimenez, Jim Cooper, Barry Graves, Rodney Jones, Lee Ann Sims, Bob Snodgrass—sponsor; BACK: Lynn Duckworth, Ismael Duenes, Mike Polocek.

CELEBRITY. Mike Poloczek, alias Boy George, makes his grand entrance toward the stage to campaign for Jody Luttrell for VP of the Student Council.

The Great Experiment

The physical science class is engaged in a laboratory experiment. A visit to the classroom nets the following explanation and conversation.

"You are supposed to wrap the wire around this, and you connect it to the power to pick up a paper clip. The more amperes you get, the more paper clips it is supposed to pick up. We don't know what we're doing."

"Did you determine your resistance before you put this in?"

"You have to scratch the varnish off (the wire) or it won't work."

"Check the connections."

"Did you all hook it up to that?"

"You twist the deal in the middle."

"It's not on one amp."

"Well, what's it on?"

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten . . ."

"Gol, Michelle! Nothing!"

"We're forty."

"No, thirty."

"... forty."

"We need a metal file."

"Here it is."

"Do you have to have two of these?"

"They told us to do that."

"They told you wrong."

"We have to unhook this one."

"Oh, Robin! We'll never do it."

"It won't pick 'em up."

"I told you, Emily."

"How do you wind this?"

"It depends on how far we move this."

"It's supposed to be two meters long." (said measuring wire).

"Oh! How do you wrap it?"

"So—I knew what I was doing."

"There. Now what?"

"What do you do after you put the thing on there?"

"We've got to turn it off."

"Yeah. You don't want to shock yourself."

"What are we doing wrong? Look, it's positive."

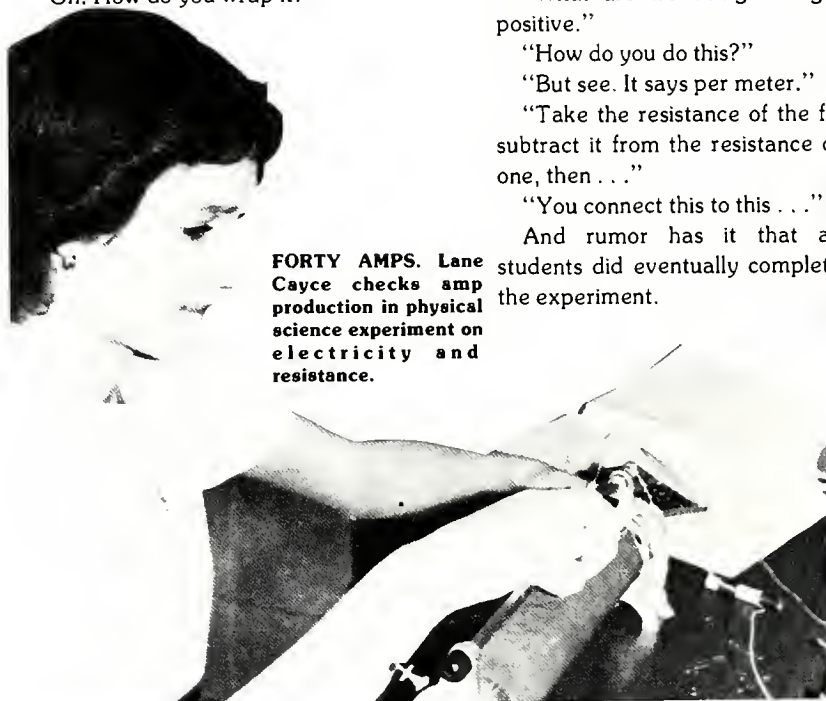

"How do you do this?"

"But see. It says per meter."

"Take the resistance of the first one, subtract it from the resistance of that one, then . . ."

"You connect this to this . . ."

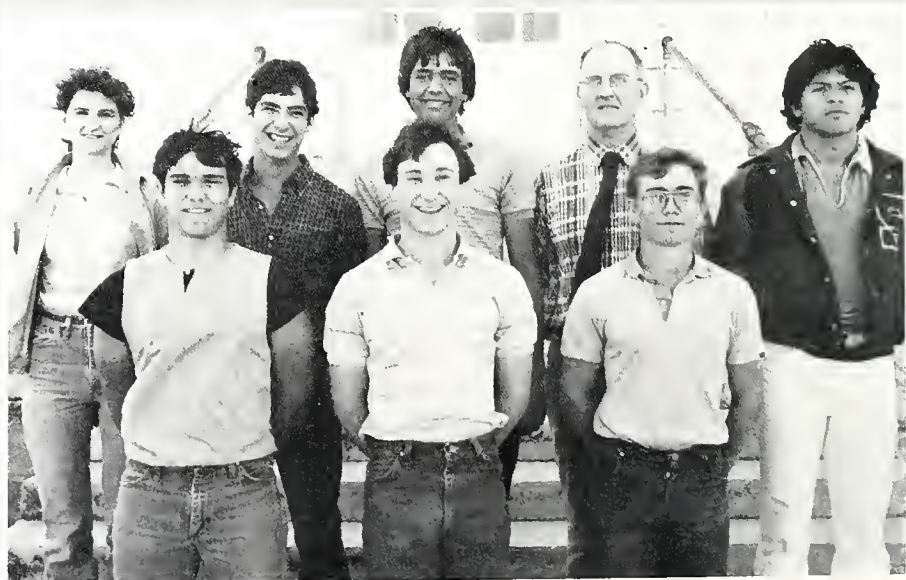

And rumor has it that all students did eventually complete the experiment.

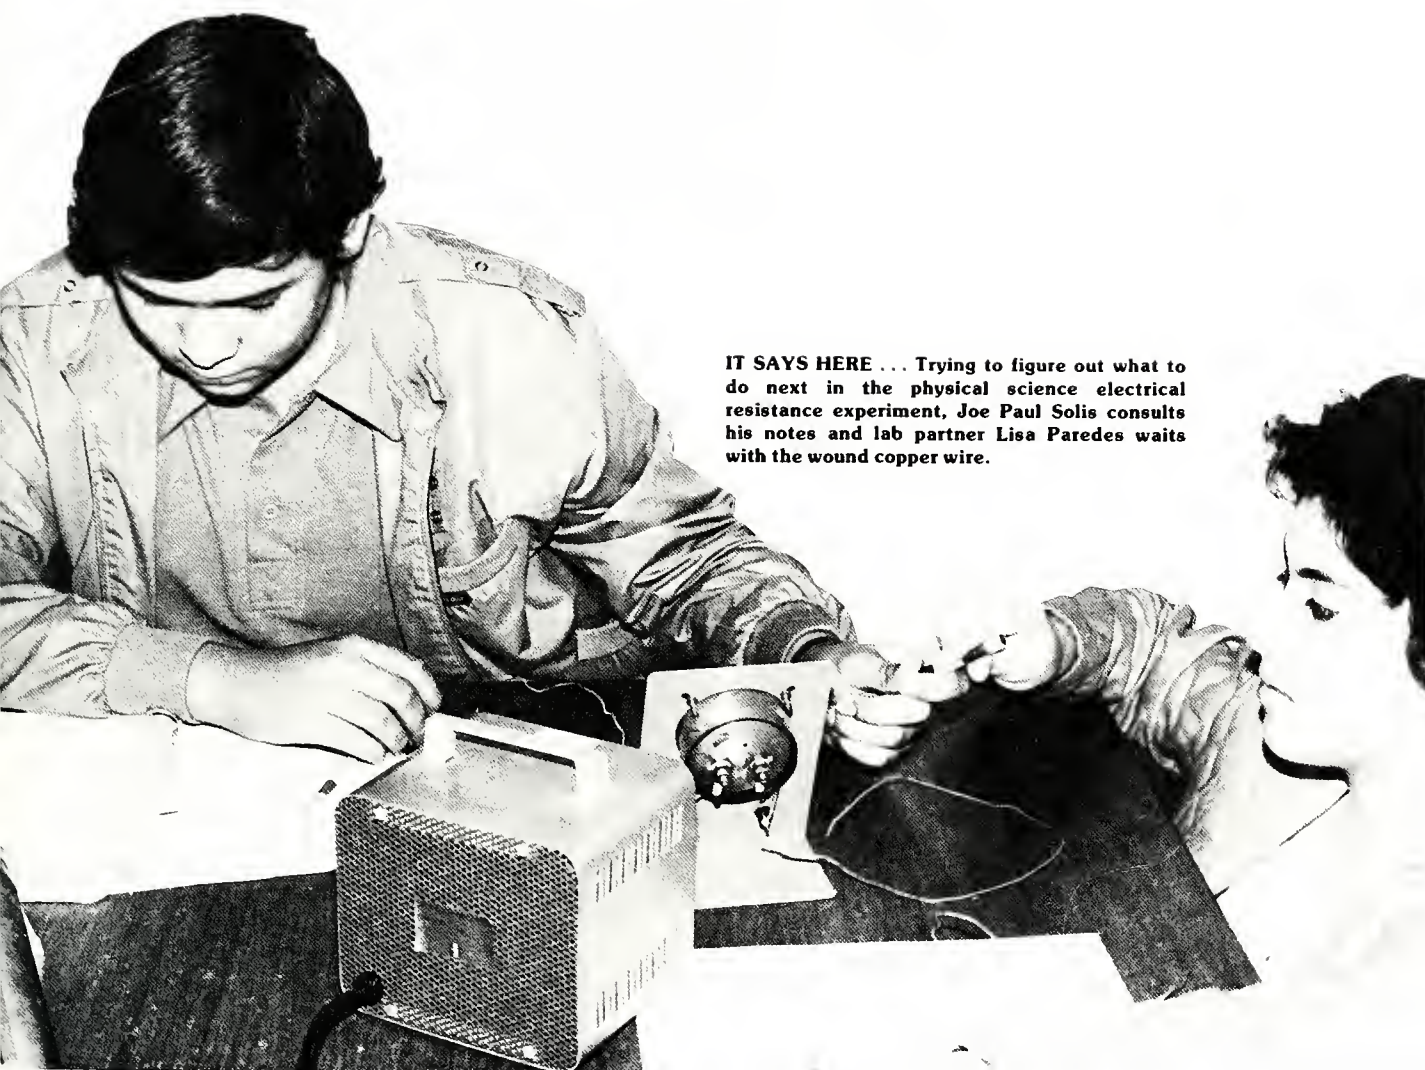

FORTY AMPS. Lane Cayce checks amp production in physical science experiment on electricity and resistance.

Winning feels so good

The scene is the band concert and sightreading contest in Coleman. At stake is the sweepstakes, which the mighty Broncos do not take for granted anymore.

"Well, here it goes again!"

"What are you griping about, now?"

"We have to put these uniforms on one more time."

"We'll only be in them a little while, so shhhhh!"

"How do you think we'll do?"

"All I have to say is, 'We better not make a two!'"

"Oh, NO! I've got a runner!"

"Where? In your mouth?"

"No, dummy—in my panty hose!"

"I'm so nervous."

"Why? All we have to do is get up on the stage, play some music we've never seen before, and then we wait for the results. We either go home screaming or crying. So what's the big deal?"

"After all that, aren't you even scared?"

"Are you kidding? I'm petrified!"

"What am I going to do when the judge sees this runner in my panty hose? I sit on the outside."

.....

"Boy, I'm sure glad that's over with. Now, we only have to worry about the sightreading."

"Remember! Keep your heads up and your mouths shut for the judges."

"I feel like I'm going in front of a firing squad. Do I get any last words? Like HELP!"

"You'd better do good or you'll be in front of my firing squad."

.....

"We're through! Now comes the long waiting."

"What's taking so long?"

"Hurry up and get in, so we can hear, too."

"There's too many of us and not enough seats. Sorry! Standing room only."

"Well, get over so I can at least stand up!"

"Heck, I guess I can sit on the floor."

"WE MADE THE ONE!!!!!" (screams and cries)

"Everyone, there's a party at Jody's house—all the punch and cookies your heart desires. Ha! Ha!"

"Boy, the one good thing about making a one is that you get to hug all the pretty girls."

"HOW DO WE FEEL? WE FEEL GOOD! OH, WE FEEL SO GOOD!!!!!"

"World, watch out, 'cause here comes the best band around."

"Watch out, Brady! We're out to beat your record!"

"WE'RE THE BEST IN THE LAND 'CAUSE WE'RE THE MIGHTY BRONCO BAND!!!"

"Look out, people, here we come."

"See you next year! We'll be back for another trophy for best band!"

HURRY AND WAIT. Band members wait to go on stage for the UIL concert and sightreading contest in Coleman, hoping to win another sweepstakes.

"Telling it like it is"

No rain on last parade

In concluding the story of the year which has been concerned with "Telling it like it is," it is appropriate to go behind the scenes of the last event on the school calendar, graduation, and "tell it like it is."

The place is the field house and the football field. The time, 7:30 P.M. on May 18, to about 9:30 P.M. of the same date.

Seniors are arriving in various stages of readiness.

Inside the Field House

"Doug, go get about 65 programs."

"It looks like everyone's getting dressed."

"It's not time yet."

"We still have 15 minutes left."

"I want one, Doug."

"I'm going to march in like this." (Meaning with the tassel on the billed cap.)

"Let me have one, please."

"Thank you."

"... seven forty-five."

"Is it eight-thirty (when it starts)?"

"What side does the tassel go on?"

"Right. Then when you walk off, to the left."

"Think he'd get mad if we asked all the seniors to go outside—senior meeting? It's something like a national emergency."

"I need a bobby pin."

"Patsy, do you think you could take two bobby pins out of your hair?"

"No. This would fall off."

"Mrs. Sappington, do you have any bobby pins?"

"Are we supposed to wear it this far back?"

"Would you put that on right?"

"On the right—then it goes to the left."

"It starts at eight o'clock."

"Eight-thirty."

"I think it's getting to me. I'm getting nervous here."

"Look at my panty hose. Aren't they neat?" (White with pattern of bows and dots)

"Boy! I could go out and play baseball in this."

"OK. Now I got it."

"Were we supposed to get fireworks?"

"I thought we already had."

"Well, why don't we have a little senior meeting now?"

"Do you have any bobby pins?"

"My hair is already flat, so it doesn't make any difference."

"Oh, you found some."

"We're all nervous."

"No. We're not nervous. I'm scared but not nervous."

"It's at eight-thirty."

"Judy has some."

"My word, Chris. You're still in front of the mirror?"

"I can't do anything with my hair."

"Let's go outside. It's hot in here."

"You got any gum?"

"Ven."

"What are we doing?"

"I'm ready."

The seniors move outside to the front of the fieldhouse and make some effort to line up.

"Whoops!"

"You had it on the wrong side!"

"You knocked it off!"

"Well, it was on the wrong side."

"It's about time to kick this thing off."

"I'm gonna be bald. My hair is starting to thin out right here. See!"

"Mine is, too."

"Ya'll better hurry up."

"It looks like football."

"... or track."

"They've got the audience up there."

"Let go of it!"

"Drew, it's supposed to go on the right."

"I'm ready for this to be over. I'm hungry!"

"There you are. We were looking for you."

"We're following her."

"Maybe we ought to start early so we can get over early. I really am getting antsy that it's going to rain."

"I like my lines. 'And the rains descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house.' I like that line, especially for this occasion."

"I like my whole speech."

"Was everyone here?"

"Ask Jeff."

"The only quote I have is, 'Every day to a wise man is a new life.' I want to go give this thing and be done."

"We're about ready to move 'em up and get on the line."

ON TIME. Tammy Duren arrives at the field house wearing her gown, carrying the hat.

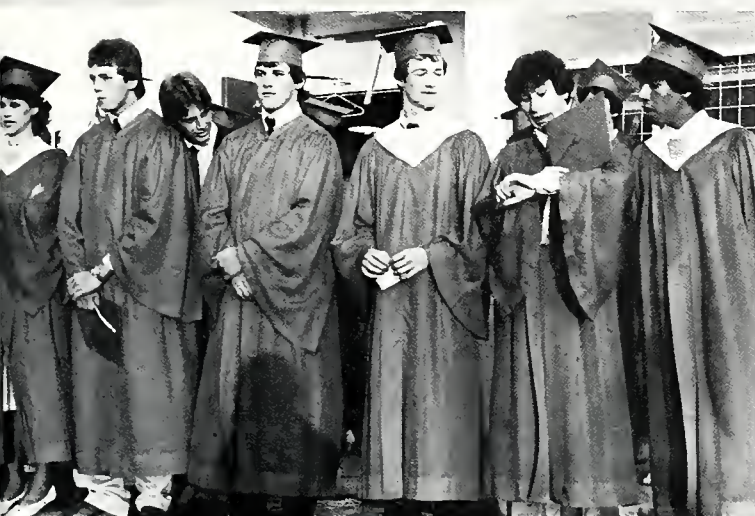

JUST RIGHT. Girls use the mirrors to get those graduation hats on at just the right angle.

NEARLY READY. Florie Mesa, Tommie Sanchez, Maribel Perez, and Ida Castilleja get into their caps and gowns.

FINISHING TOUCHES. David Love holds equipment for Chris DeMarco and Melanie Kelly as they try to get the hair and makeup to suit them for the big event.

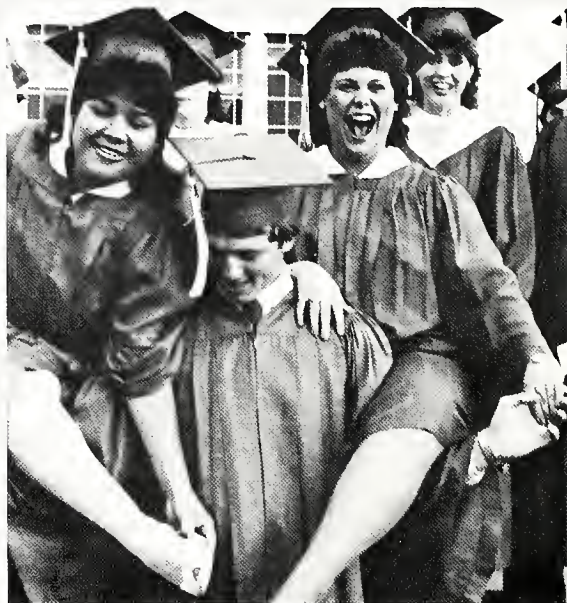

TIME? Almost ready to go, Billy Laxton consults his watch for the group standing in front of the field house.

PASSING TIME. Natalie Holguin and Rosemary Dominguez use the waiting time to look over the program and miniature diplomas which graduates received.

WAIT A MINUTE. Drew Wallace has his hands full trying to help Patsy Samaniego and Laura Preston strike a pose—at least it is something to do while waiting.

COMPARING. Valedictorian Lynn Duckworth and salutatorian Mike Poloczek discuss their speeches.

The class of 1984

Second row goes to the platform to receive diplomas.

First row stands back in place with diplomas.

FIREWORKS. On the field house end of the field, Jeff Brittain prepares to set off firecrackers.

ALL OVER. Back in the field house, Louis Ramirez folds his gown to turn it back in.

SENIOR LOOK. David Love finds a good place to wear his tassel after graduation.

No rain on last parade

"Jeff, what time is it?"
 "Eight twenty-nine . . . Oh, excuse me. The big hand is on 29, and the small and is on 43 . . . So it's 43:29."
 "When do they start?"
 ". . . Second white hash mark."
 "Everybody in line?"

Strains of "Land of Hope and Glory" drift down the field. The cool air is solemn as the seniors process quietly down the track making no sound of footsteps. Some chew gum, some carry programs, some smile and wave to the grand stands, others solemnly watch the line ahead.

All tassels are on the right!
 The salutatorian speaks and the valedictorian begins with nervousness in her voice. When she gets to the line "the floods came," she looks around at the threatening sky.

Soon the awards have been given, the diplomas presented.

As the band plays the recessional, skyrockets flare up in front of the field house, firecrackers drown out the music, and a sea of smoke drifts over the football field. The class of 1984 moves down the track while firecrackers go off simultaneously from both the Wallace and Brittain ends of the line.

Then hats go into the air.

"I lost a hat."
 "Did someone lose a tassel?"
 "Yes. I did . . . when I graduated, three years ago — and I haven't seen it since."

Hug, tears, and congratulations time ends and seniors make their way one by one back to the field house.

"Where do we put these?"
 "Where is Mrs. Hale?"

The stadium empties, the custodians clear the chairs from the field, and the sky rumbles its promise of rain. The parade is over, and the clouds empty onto the deserted field.

LAST STEP. As Coach Stan Anderson looks for Keith Wall's miniature diploma, Coach Clyde Dukes folds the gown to box it and send it back.
